STREET STORIES

Wednesday night, January 3, the Knights of Pythias club will give a dance for members only, at the club rooms.

The light-rain over this section of the state will be beneficial to wheat according to growers. The acreage will be materially reduced here the coming season.

Sam Harris, undersheriff, has returned from Pottsville where he was called on account of the serious illness of his father. He reports that he left his parents improving, but he was still very ill.

Thursday, January 6, the criminal term of the district court will convene. Monday and Tuesday proceeding will be devoted to hearing motions and demurrers.

Jim Britton who for a number of years has been connected with the city water department is reported to be seriously ill at his home in southeast Ardmore, of La Grippe.

The doctors report an epidemic of La Grippe in the city and in some sections scarcely a household is entirely free of it. None of the cases so far reported, are malignant, and are yielding to the usual treatment.

The State League of Printing Pressmen of Oklahoma will begin a two days' session here tomorrow. Delegates are expected to arrive tonight and tomorrow morning. Secretary Walker of Stillwater is expected here this afternoon.

It is reported that Hardy of St. Louis who has been visiting with his family in Oklahoma City is here for a brief stay. His relatives and friends in this city are here to see him. He is quite well and is enjoying his visit.

Mr. M. London, Jr., who is in the city from Edmond where he is a student in the Central State Normal, spending the holidays with his parents, was taken suddenly ill with a severe attack of La Grippe and it is doubtful if he will be able to resume his studies next Tuesday when the school reopens.

G. H. Bruce, secretary of the school board, and Sept. Edwards of the city schools stated this morning that there is little likelihood of the school board accepting the resignation of R. A. Hoffman as a member. The board values the services of Mr. Hoffman very highly and proposes to retain him if possible.

Some time ago the management of the Saturday Evening Post inaugurated a letter writing contest, in which prizes were to be awarded for the best letters upon the subject "The Value of Advertising." Among those fortunate enough to be awarded a prize, were Albert and Ray Howard, sons of R. A. Howard of this city, who were each awarded one of the dollar prizes in this nation-wide competition.

COUNTRY CLUB DANCE TONIGHT.

The dance to be given tonight by the Dornick Hills Country Club will begin at 8:30. Good music has been secured and the officers desire that all members be present to enjoy it. The road to the club has been much improved and is now in first class condition, the road has been changed however, and now the best route is by the way of Dr. VonKeller's home. Go south of his residence and turn north at the store on the corner, then go directly north through the lane and on up the west side of the car track in front of the Maxwell home. Mr. Maxwell, president of Dornick Hills club has had several teams at work on this road today and says that by night it will be one of the best roads in this section of the country.

SWINDLED OUT OF BIG SUM

Vincent Baer of Midland Texas Stung for $20,000 by Wire Tappers

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 30.—Vincent Baer, a wealthy rancher of Midland, Texas, was swindled out of $20,000 by wire tappers on a fake horse race scheme, according to reports to the police today.

The swindlers met Baer in Kansas City and later induced him to part with his money on the assurance of getting a greater sum. He has not seen them since. They are believed to have left for Cincinnati, Christmas.

Metropolitan Grand Quartette.

AT THE THEATRES

At Robison Opera House.
"September Morn." a romantic musical comedy by Arthur Gillespie and Aubrey Stauffer, produced originally in Chicago at the LaFalle opera house where it made a furor during a run covering 256 performances, comes to the Robison Opera House New Year's day (Saturday, Jan. 1). It possesses much of the spectacular aspects of the Broadway "review," although distinctly a "Made in Chicago" brand of musical farce. The company to present it number fifty and among its principals will be found Harry Fields, Jacques Erazee, Harry Jones, Maxwell Sargent, Ernest Marx, Vernice Martyn, Mildred Goodfellow, Helene Hardy and May Bell Shearer. It will be given here with all the original costumes, scenery, chorus and a large corps d' ballet.

At the Palace.

Few actors, granting that they possessed the requisite histrionic talent, would have been qualified to play Daniel Edmond, William Farnum's role in the William Fox photoplay masterpiece, "The Broken Law." This stupendous feature has to do with the destiny of a gypsy lover, and necessarily calls for an artist skilled in romantic acting. That is not all, however, for it makes one other requirement—brawn.

Were not Farnum the physical culture enthusiast that he is, he would never have survived the fight scene in "The Broken Law." The play is set in England in 1850, and the fight between Farnum, as Edmond, and Ganser, who also aspires to be chief of the clan, is with bare fists, in accordance with the boxing rules then in force. And the fight is really thrillingly real in so far as the weight of the blows is concerned.

At the Majestic.

The Fairbanks Twin of the Thalhouser (Mutual) studios, Madeline and Marion, were responsible the other day for delaying for several hours the taking of a picture at the Thalhouser studios, thereby costing the management several hundred dollars. It was due to no fault of theirs, however, but to the fact that nature has created them so alike that it is difficult to tell one from the other.

The girls are both athletic. Madeline is a lover of horses, while her sister is a little shy of them, and whenever there is a scene calling for horseback riding she is given the part.

A ride through the woods was to be photographed, and Director Howard Mitchell, assembling the group to take the scene, called one of the twins—the one he thought was Madeline—and, leaving the studio at 10 in the morning, they motored to a wild section of the country some twenty miles away.

When it came time to photograph the runaway horse scene, Miss Fairbanks was called, and it was then discovered that the wrong twin had been selected for the part. Marion gently but firmly refused to take the mount, and the only thing to do was to send back to the studio for her sister, while the picture was held up for nearly three hours. The cast got a rest, and the morning was a total loss to the management.

Children Are Hungry For Music

SCIENTISTS tell us that among the numerous compartments of a child's brain, there is one that has been assigned to music. This part of the brain, like its other divisions, requires careful cultivating if the child's mind is to be fully developed.

If you have children in your home, a good piano or player piano should be there also. We would like to sell you a fine high-grade piano because we know that you will always be satisfied with it, and because its superb quality will insure the most rapid development of the child's musical taste.

Now is the time—you can buy for cash or on convenient payments.
